Booktoberfest is our signature community book drive, rallying businesses, schools, and individuals to raise thousands of books for the Promising Pages Community Book Bank. As the region's largest source of free books for children, our Community Book Bank distributes books to more than 30,000 children each year through nearly 200 community partners. Booktoberfest sponsors make this impact possible by helping us keep our shelves stocked and books moving into the hands of children who need them most.

Having access to books is critical to a child's literacy development and educational success, but in low-income neighborhoods there is only 1 age-appropriate book for every 300 children. Promising Pages removes literacy barriers by collecting new and donated books and sharing them with children living in the Charlotte Area Book Desert: those with few, if any, books at home. In the '25-'26 school year, we shared over 271,000 free books with more than 64,794 under-resourced children and 187 community partners.
